

Council Will be Asked to Pass Measure Closing Saloons Between the Hours of 10 and 1 Sundays.

As a compromise measure the General Council of Lexington will be asked to pass an ordinance repealing the present city law requiring that saloons be closed from 12 o'clock Saturday night until Monday morning at 4 o'clock and fixing the hours for closing from 10 to 1 Sundays.

Such an ordinance was recommended by the Ways and Means Committee at a meeting held last week and the City Solicitor was directed to draft a measure containing these provisions.

By keeping saloons closed from 10 to 1 Sundays city officials believe that the greatest objection church-going people urge against them will be removed and that the change will be satisfactory to the saloon keepers.

Under the ordinance which the Ways and Means Committee ordered the City Solicitor to prepare, saloons will be required to close at 12 o'clock Saturday night, remain closed till 4 o'clock Sunday mornings, close at 10 o'clock Sunday mornings and remain closed till 1 o'clock, at which time they can open and remain open till 12 o'clock at night.

One of the members of the Ways and Means Committee is W. R. Cockrell, formerly of this city.

Will Compel Government to Return Vast Sums.

Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court signed an order directing Ferdinand Eldman, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third District of New York, to pay $67,219.28, with costs, making a total of $73,111.27, to executors under the will of Cornelius Vanderbilt. The order was granted in accordance with a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States as the culmination of long and expensive litigation.

Collector Eldman assessed the Vanderbilt estate during the war with Spain under the War Revenue act signed by the President on June 13, 1898. The executors protested. The assessment was confirmed by the United States Circuit Court and the executors paid over to Mr. Eldman the amount demanded. The decision of the court below was taken to the United States Supreme Court, where the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals was reversed.

The decision will cost the government many millions in the way of refund to executors of other estates that were heavily taxed during the war.

Suit Against a Railroad—Negro Lawyer Decides to Test the Jim Crow Law in the Courts.

Suit has been filed at Lexington by J. Alexander Chiles, a negro lawyer, for $17,000 damages against the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company charging that while on his way to Washington from Lexington he was not allowed to ride in the first-class coach as far as Ashland, although he had bought a first-class ticket.

400 Indictments.

Indictments to the number of about 400 were returned by the Franklin county grand jury against the Standard Oil Company. The charge is failure to take out peddlers' license, under the act of 1902. The indictment is similar to that returned lately in a number of Kentucky counties.

Will Not Reduce Acreage of Tobacco.

The Kentucky Burley Tobacco Growers' Association has declined to unite with the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association of Tennessee in a movement to reduce the acreage of tobacco in the tobacco belt, with a view to maintaining high prices and forcing the combine to hustle for its supply.

The announcement has been received that the Tennessee association has induced a large majority of its members to reduce their acreage 30 per cent. and that, owing to the scarcity of help, the crops are likely to be cut still below this amount.

It was suggested that the crop be curtailed, thus giving the various big consumers of leaf tobacco no opportunity to force down the price of the weed.

This plan is not encouraged for the reason that the Burley Growers' Association last year demonstrated that if it could not secure the millions of dollars needed to handle the entire crop it could at least sustain the price of tobacco at figures that would be beneficial to the grower.

With this faith in the strength of the organization the growers in the Kentucky Burley belt have planned big crops instead of restricting their acreage.

A Dinner.

Louisville has its way of doing things. Hence it is a Dinner.

Unlike most other church dinners, that of the McFerran gathers the women of the church as well as the men. The suggestion was offered last night that the alumni of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary give a banquet each year during commencement week.

The program of toasts was as follows: "An Epic of the Nursery," the Rev. E. C. Dargan.

"Christian Fraternity," J. Van Norman.

"A Baptist and a Half," the Rev. Carter Helm Jones.

"The future of McFerran Church," the Rev. W. W. Hamilton.

The Rev. John R. Sampey acted as toastmaster, and an orchestra furnished music.

Bids Opened For Sailors' Tobacco.

Bids have been opened at the Navy Department for 150,000 lbs. of tobacco, the annual supply purchased by the Government for the sailors. Nine firms entered the competition submitting from two to four samples each. First the samples are subjected to a chemical test, then submitted to the juries for their report. Under the present contract forty cents per pound is being paid. Prices ranged from 30¢ to 41¢, but one firm bid 45 to 48 cents.

World's Week of Prayer for the Lord's Day.

Sunday Reform Association in all lands have appointed April 30th to May 7th, 1905, inclusive, as the World's Week of Prayer for the Lord's Day. Just before the summer flood of Sabbath breaking, we are called every year to protect the imperilled Lord's Day by a week of prayer and prevention. Let us recall gratefully as one of the surviving gifts of the lost Paradise the Sabbath which was from the very beginning divinely "made for man," and which is therefore not to be considered as Hebrew but human and humane. Let us ponder the profound significance of the fact that in the God-given Ten Commandments, the Keystone, largest of all, is the Sabbath commandment, the breaking of which leads to the breaking of others and the keeping of which leads to the keeping of the others.

We should remember that Jesus taught us to observe the weekly Sabbath, and by an act that was in

be first of all a week of very much important prayer in public, around the family altar, and in the closet; but also let it be a week of petitioning national and state and local officers for better legislation and better enforcement of existing laws. Let us particularly appeal to Congress for a law against Sunday banking in the money order and registry divisions of the post office, but recently permitted. Let specific efforts be made in each town to abolish or diminish work in post offices, which London and Toronto prove unnecessary. Let timely literature be distributed in every town and city by a modern "seventy" going two and two from house to house. Where possible let Sunday trains be stopped, but in any case let Christians be persuaded to stop using them. So, also, with Sunday papers, in which every form of Sunday work is combined—that of professional men, the editors of mechanics, the printers; of merchants, the newsmen; of hucksters, the newsboys; also the work

Thinking to Death.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects.

The idea that one has some incipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of these or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much doctoring as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have.

Every melancholy thought, every morbid action and every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be protected by cheerful thoughts, of which there is bountiful store in every one's possession. Bright companions are cheaper than drugs and plaster.

The morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop. We need more mental stimulus and less worry.

New York Legislature Removes Justice Hooker From Supreme Court Bench.

The removal of Justice Warren B. Hooker from the Supreme Court bench of the State of New York by concurrent resolution of the Senate and Assembly, was the conclusion drawn from evidence given before the Assembly Judiciary Committee. Henry B. Coman, counsel for the committee of inquiry read his conclusions of fact, embracing six different postulates appointments.

In each of these cases Mr. Coman declared that the conduct of Justice Hooker was immoral and tended to submit the administration of justice by Judge Hooker on the bench to contempt and disgrace.

Saloons Closed.

On last Sunday not a saloon, bar room or barber shop was open in St. Louis. The Excise Commissioner Mulvihill and the Board of Police Commissioners at the instigation of Governor Folk accomplished this.

Between 4 o'clock Sunday morning and 10 o'clock at night more than 8,000 persons walked across the Eads bridge from St. Louis to the East Side. The street cars and ferries carried twice as many more.

At Kansas City, the State Sunday closing law was strictly enforced as on the two previous Sundays. Only saloons were affected, however, and restaurants, cigar stores, news stands and barber shops observed their usual hours.

HARRY CROMWELL carries the blood of both Harrison Chief and Indian Chief, strengthened by a double cross of that brilliant Joe Downing. Harrison Chief's fineness was unquestionably inherited from his dam Late Boya, by Joe Downing, said by critics to have been the finest mare of her day. We believe Harry Cromwell to be the only inbred Joe Downing, backed by Indian Chief and Harrison Chief, in existence, and is the best bred son of Harrison Chief. He is entitled through his prepotent lineage to better beauty, animation, action and speed

Red Cloud's daughters are, among the most coveted broodmares in our State. His progeny have gone into the hands of our wealthiest horsemen, solely on their merit. ## WINTER EATING RUINS STOMACHS.

"Now is the Time You Need Mi-o-na," Says W. S. Lloyd.

Think for a moment of the extra strain you put upon the stomach in the winter. The hearty food, the late suppers, and the lack of exercise and out door life all weaken and strain the stomach, laying the foundation for poor health and suffering.

Chronic stomach troubles, nervous irritability, and serious bowel and kidney diseases have often dated from a week of extra "good living." Nearly everyone is bothered with more or less heartaches and backaches, furred tongue, poor appetite, dry, hacking cough, heartburn, spots before the eyes, dizziness or vertigo, sleeplessness, lack of energy, loss of flesh or a general weak, tired feeling.

Now is the time when Mi-o-na is needed to repair the ravages and wastes the hearty eating of winter has caused in the stomach and digestive system. This is the only known agent that strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, so they can and will readily digest whatever food is eaten. A Mi-o-na tablet before each meal will remove all irritation, inflammation and congestion in the digestive organs, and so strengthen them that they will extract from the food all that goes to make good rich blood, firm muscle, and a sound healthy body.

This remarkable remedy costs 50 cents, and if its use does not restore your full vigor, vitality, and health, W. S. Lloyd, one of the best known druggists in this section, will refund your money. Unbounded faith like this deserves your confidence. [Ap]19May3.

Open Session of Y. W. C. T. U.

The open session of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union held Sunday evening in the Baptist church was one of the best yet held. The attendance was very good, and an excellent program was furnished. A choir composed of the members of the Y. W. C. T. U. furnished the music.

The meeting was opened by a song followed by a prayer by Mr. Bruce Trimble. The presiding officer, Miss Elizabeth Wyatt, then read a paper entitled, "What is High License?" This was followed by a selection by Miss Fiske Greene. Then came selections by Misses Reis, Drake, Sharp, and Rogers under the general head, "License an Outrage." Mrs. Grubbs, President of the Y. W. C. T. U., read a paper on "What Shall We do with the Saloon?" After reading the paper, Mrs. Grubbs made a short talk in which she expressed her satisfaction at the increasing interest shown in the temperance work and her hopes for a continuance of progress in the direction of prohibition.

Two of the best things of the evening were, a solo by Miss Emily Nesbitt, and a recitation, "Say No," by Miss Eliza Nunnelley who in this very attractive way celebrated her tenth birthday.

The idea about which the various papers centered was that to accept license money is to receive polluted money, and that in doing this the State and county enter into partnership in the destruction of character—that license money is blood money.

Fines Imposed, Commitments to Jail.

At the January term of Montgomery Circuit Court Austin May (son of Perg May) and Allen Preslett (son of Anoli Preslett) young men of Judy neighborhood, testified before the grand jury Rob Shultz, who clerks for P. H. Davis, a saloon-keeper, was indicted for selling whiskey to Austin May, a minor. The case came to trial last week. During the progress of the trial it was charged that P. H. Davis, saloonist and Troy Green, of Judy (son of Jas. Green), had tried to induce Perg May to sign an order, antedating the indictment, authorizing the sale of whisky to Perg May's son, Austin. These facts were made known to the Court. Davis and Green were held in contempt of Court for such proceedings. On Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock Davis was committed to jail for 24 hours. Green received same sentence but later the sentence was extended awaiting the discretion of the Court. Davis was released on Sunday afternoon and Green on Monday afternoon. Full proceedings of the Circuit Court will be given next week.

Making Old Orchards Pay.

The question often arises, especially in sections of the country where fruit growing has been followed for several years, can and old or neglected orchard be made to pay? In this connection U. P. Hedrick of the Michigan agricultural college says that some old orchards can be improved and possibly be made profitable, but not many of the old ones can be made to give satisfactory results. It may repay to try to bring an old orchard into bearing for the farm or the home, but for the commercial orchard, or for the young man, or for the up-to-date fruit grower, new orchards must take the place of the old ones. The treatment that can be given to make the old orchards bear can be set forth in rules as follows:

In late winter, give the trees a thorough pruning. Do not cut and slash recklessly. Have an ideal in mind in the pruning and persistently try to attain it. Give a liberal application of fertilizers of some kind to furnish plenty of potash, a fair amount of phosphoric acid, and a comparatively small amount of nitrogen.

In early spring, before plowing begins, take a hoe with a short handle and scrape off all the rough bark, reaching up the lower limbs as far as possible. Follow the scraping, before the buds swell, with a thorough spraying with strong copper sulphate solution, one pound to fifteen gallons of water. Follow with the regular season's spraying.

With a steady team and a good, strong plow, break the sod four or five inches deep. It does not hurt if some roots are broken. As soon as the plowing is finished begin and keep up thorough culture until Aug. 1. In cultivating the last time sow a cover crop of oats or crimson clover, or use some other legume if the clover does not succeed. In future years work along the lines indicated above. Good results cannot be expected until the second or third year.

Nervous School Children.

Statistics gathered by various School Boards, show that a large percentage of school children suffer from different forms of nervousness, mild or exaggerated. Some showed a tendency to melancholy, others mental depression, and many the nervous twitchings of mild chorea, or St. Vitus' dance. Most of these troubles can be overcome by proper food, sufficient sleep, and Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin. It is a universal children's medicine, because, if good food is eaten, it insures that the food is properly digested and indigestion and nerve poisons properly thrown out. It is pleasant to take, and safe and sure in results. Try it. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

When a man has learned to get along with what he has he has learned the first lesson in getting along.

Miserable Conditions.

Of body and mind, always result from a torpid liver, which leads to bile poisons being absorbed into the blood, and poisoning all the nerves and tissues. This dreadful state, some of the symptoms of which are headache, bitter taste, nausea, lack of appetite, yellow complexion, constipation, etc., can be quickly cured by taking Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin. It relieves the strain on your liver, relaxes the tightened bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the stomach, and makes it as clean as a whistle. Try it. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

The chief trouble about thinking twice before acting once is that some other fellow is liable to jump in and seize the opportunity about the time we begin on the second thought.

Strawberries Year After Year.

Whether strawberries can be grown year after year on the same ground will depend upon the soil, its condition, available fertility, the amount and kind of work the grower is willing to expend on the berry field and whether the work is done when it should be. Strawberries of all crops will not stand neglect at any time and yield the largest returns, and therefore if the grower cannot, or will not, spend the necessary time and money properly to renew and care for the old berry field, he would better not undertake to grow berries continually on the same ground, but rather plow them up after the second crop. Strawberries can, however, be profitably grown on the same land for a number of years. I have a field, from which the fifth crop was picked last June.

This field has a deep clay soil. A crop of corn preceded the berries. About the middle of August Crimson clover was sown among the standing corn and harrowed in. The corn was removed in the fall. The clover continued to grow, and made a good growth in the spring.

It was allowed to ripen seed, and was then plowed so that the furrow did not quite cover all the clover. Then the field was harrowed both ways. In a short time the clover came up thick all over the ground. It made a poor growth that summer, but in the fall and spring it made an immense growth. The crop was turned under about the middle of April, and the strawberries set out.

The berries were given good cultivation, plenty of high-grade fertilizers were applied each year, and the field renewed immediately after each fruiting season. It was intended to retain the field for another crop, but the extreme drought of last summer, which continued even into winter, has made it necessary to plow up this field. For several reasons I desire to reset this land to berries as soon as possible. This is my plan:

Next spring this field will be plowed, part set to tomatoes and the remainder planted to green beans, to be used in the farm canning factory. Crimson clover will be sown among the tomatoes the next spring, and this plowed under the next spring, after going to seed, and then plow under the second crop of clover the next spring and set to strawberries. On the other part the beans will be harvested in time to sow clover in August, and then it will be treated the same as the rest of the field. Thus there will be five crops of berries, one crop of tomatoes or beans and two crops of crimson clover grown in seven years.

Hereafter I intend to grow but four crops of berries and then plow the field up after the fruiting season, which ends here the last week in June, and cultivate until the first part of August, when crimson clover will be sown. The cultivation will help to retain the moisture for the clover, and will also kill many weed seeds in the soil. The clover will be plowed under as early in the spring as possible after it has made a good growth. Beans will now be planted, and they will be harvested in time to sow clover again in August or September. This clover crop will be plowed under in the spring, and strawberries set out. This would be a five year rotation, and will allow the growing of seven crops in the five years; four berry crops, one of beans and two of clover. I believe this is better than the seven-year rotation. The rotation is shortened, there will be more certainty of securing a good stand of clover, and by growing the beans between the crops of clover there will be a larger yield of beans, and the first crop of clover will have time to decompose and become thoroughly mixed with the soil, thus making the nitrogen it contains more available. A high-grade fertilizer containing a high per cent. of phosphoric acid and potash, with but little nitrogen, is used each year. What nitrogen is used will be in the form of nitrate of soda.

Heart Weakness.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure has made many hearts well after they have been pronounced hopeless. It has completely cured thousands, and will almost invariably cure or benefit every case of heart disease.

Short breath, pain around heart, palpitation, fluttering, dizzy, fainting and smothering spells should not be neglected. Take Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and see how quick you will be relieved.

It cannot make a new heart, but will restore a sick one by strengthening the heart nerves and muscles, relieving the unnatural strain, and restoring its vitality.

"I had a very bad case of heart trouble. For six months I could not walk. Last July I was plowing corn and feeling bad all day. In the afternoon, in plowing one row I had to lay down, or fall down, three times. My heart was throbbing, as though it would burst through, and I had difficulty in getting my breath. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and before I had used it I could lay down and sleep all night. Privately I had used up from two to ten bottles, and my heart is as regular as a clock. I can now do any work I wish and can work considerable for an old man."

H. D. McCall, Free, Ohio.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

His Platform.

Sam W. Menefee, editor of the Danville Advocate, is a candidate for Mayor. He favors equal water rates to all; opposes "any pool room, bucket-shop, saloon, gambling house, or commission house dealing in futures;" opposes building fire class buildings in the center of town; favors five years exemption for manufacturing plants, liberal aid to a free city library, enforcement of laws against vagrants, cutting the Mayor's salary in half and the city the other.

Great Activity.

Is shown without any disagreeable after-effects, by Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin, in going to the seat of your trouble, when you are a victim of constipation, biliousness, headache, indigestion, dizziness, etc. It gently but firmly drives out the poisons that are causing your illness, and braces up all your internal organs to do their proper work. Try it. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

Try for Health

222 South Duval St.,
CINCINNATI, OHIO, Oct. 7, 1902.
Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie in bed nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease, and others said it was consumption. It was a little while before they called it what I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Runkler

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

MARRIAGES.

HUMPHRIES-CORTEES. At the home of R. W. Filbin, in this city, on April 17, Miss Genevieve Humphries, daughter of Geo. Humphries, one of our county's prosperous farmers, and Mr. Perry Cortees, of Clark county, were united in marriage, the Rev. Geo. Wyatt, of whose church the bride is a member, officiated. The groom is a prosperous young farmer, in every way worthy of the excellent young woman, who is an active worker in the Sunday School of the Christian church at her home. She will be greatly missed by her many friends who join in extending their hearty congratulations.

HIGHLAND-OLLIFFE. On Wednesday, April 13, 1905, at the Phoenix Hotel, in Lexington, Mr. Charles Highland, of this county, and Miss Lida Lou Gillespie, of Lexington, were united in marriage by Rev. Burdland, pastor of the Somerset congregation. Immediately after the ceremony they came to Mt. Sterling on the even- ing train, and at the country home of the groom they, with relatives and friends, were entertained. Mr. Wm. Highland and Miss Nannie Highland attended the wedding. The groom is the youngest son of J. T. Highland. He, like his father and brothers and sister, is that type of man which gives honor, worth and enduring character to a community. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Gillespie, who until last fall had lived in this city and then went to Lexington. She is an attractive, exceedingly handsome and refined young woman. We predict for them a happy, useful and successful life.

The Bridge of Peace.

MRS. LEROV.

"There ain't no use talking, Mary, I'm done with George Martin for the rest of my life, and with his wife too, because she sides with him. I don't want them or their children to darken my doors again, and me and mine won't enter their neither."

"Aber, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," cried Mrs. Lawson. "You know George is all the time joking and playing his tricks, but he don't mean a bit of harm or malice, and he's as good-hearted as he can be. He thinks a lot of you, and he and Bessie seem more like our children than brother and sister. We had Bessie from the time mother died, when she was only six, till she married George, and a sweeter better girl never lived. We just can't quarrel with them, Aber."

"We can and we will," replied her husband, his jaws setting like a steel-trap. "I'm not going to let George Martin, or any other pranking fool make me the laughing stock of the neighborhood just for his fun. I've borne with him a long time, but this last trick is the straw too much. I swear I will never cross the bridge again, so help me God."

"Oh, Aber, hush," entreated his wife. "You're a deacon in the church and George ain't even a member, and here you are, calling on God to help you keep such a wicked vow as that. You'll take it back when you've cooled off, so you better do it right away, before the angel writes it down against you in the Lord's book."

"I've said it and I mean it," was the stubborn answer. "And look here, Mary, I forbid you and the children ever to cross that bridge or to enter George Martin's house. Do you hear me? Mind, I mean it!"

Mrs. Lawson waited a few moments before replying, then said slowly: "Of course, the children must obey you, Aber, but I'm different. The Bible tells even the children only to obey their parents when it's in the Lord, and I know that means a heap stronger for wives, who are responsible grown folks themselves. This order of yours ain't in the Lord, it's in the devil, and I'm not bound to obey you if it goes against my conscience. I'll tell Bessie just how it is, and I won't go over there as long as things are all right with them, but if sickness or trouble comes and she needs me, I'm going to her over that bridge just as fast as my feet can carry me. Now you've said your say and I've said mine. You'd better drop on your knees and ask the good Lord to help you forever making it. You're a deacon and George ain't never professed religion. I've heard you pray for him many a time and talk about longing to see him converted, but do you reckon he'll be drawn to any religion that you profess if you set like you say you're going to? Don't forget 'bout Cain saying to the Lord's very face, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' George is your brother, Aber."

Aber did not reply, but stalked away with his resolve unshaken; and his wife's tears dropped fast on her work. There was a prayer in her heart too, and the Master who heard the vow was also the Father who heard the prayer from the sorrowing heart of His child.

The farms of Aber Lawson and George Martin were next each other, high up on the side of a mountain. A swift mountain-stream formed the boundary line between them, and this was crossed by a bridge, which made the distance between the two houses less than a quarter of a mile. To reach the high-road by the public bridge it was necessary for the Lawsons to go three miles round, so the inconvenience to them was very great; while, the road being on their side of the stream, the private bridge was only used by the Martins as a short cut to the Lawsons' farm and the homes of a few friends. The Lawson children deeply resented being kept away from their relatives and forced to walk three miles to school, instead of one, or to cross the often dangerous stream in a boat. They protested however in vain, and at the cost of several personal chastisements. Mrs. Lawson had a talk with her sister, and they agreed upon a code of signals. As long as all went well, a white cloth was to hang from the window of each house; but if either sister was in need of the other, a red cloth was to take its place, and in that event, they were to set Mr. Lawson's orders at defiance promptly.

Several months passed and still Mr. Lawson was obdurate and his wife and sister miserable. George had tried to make friends with his brother in law, and had offered every apology, and asserted his innocence of anything worse than the desire for a little fun. Mr. Lawson met his advances with such actual insults, that even good-natured George was roused to anger and declared to his weeping wife:

"Your brother Aber is too much for me, honey. He's been most like a father to you, I know, and sister Mary is the only mother you or I have ever known since we were little children; but I'm not going to try to make up with him again. I'd even swallow his insults for your sake and sisters, if it would do any good, but it's just taking the worst kind of medicine for nothing. If brother Aber's a Christian, I don't want to be one, that's all."

The edict had gone forth in August, and it was the middle of March when the crisis came. The wind had been blowing a gale all night and the stream was unusually high and swift. The black clouds were rushing over the sky and massing for a heavy rain, when Mrs. Lawson went up stairs, after breakfast, and looked towards her sister's house, as she did many times every day. There, waving furiously in the gusts of wind, was a large red cloth.

In a moment, she was beside her husband, who stood in the open doorway, watching the rising

MT. STERLING MOTHERS

DO NOT LET YOUR CHILDREN GROW UP THIN AND PALE

When We Guarantee Vinol Will Make Them Strong, Robust and Healthy.

"I wish every mother in Mt. Sterling could know what Vinol will do for their little ones who are weak thin-legged, hollow-cheeked and bloodless," said Druggist Wm. S. Lloyd. "It seems almost wicked for parents to let their children grow up weak, puny, ailing and nervous, and if fathers and mothers would only give such children Vinol you would see a great difference in the younger generation in this vicinity."

"Vinol is just the tonic growing children need, as it builds them up and creates flesh and strength so rapidly. It contains in a highly concentrated form all of the medicinal, body building elements of cod liver oil, without a drop of oil or grease, and no sickening drugs. Children love it because it is so delicious to the taste, and you know what you are giving your little ones."

Continued Mr. Lloyd: "I am continually hearing of so much good it is doing, not only children, but the weak, aged, run-down, tired and debilitated, that I cannot help being enthusiastic in regard to Vinol."

"I wish every mother in Mt. Sterling would try Vinol, on our guarantee that if it does not do their little ones all the good we claim we will refund all the money paid us for the medicine. It seems as though it was the duty of every mother in Mt. Sterling to accept this offer." W. S. Lloyd, Druggist.

storm, and seizing his arm, cried wildly:

"Something is the matter at George's, Aber, and Bessie needs me. Will you take me there right away?"

"No, I won't," he answered doggedly. "And you mustn't go either."

"I will," she cried fiercely. Then she added with flashing eyes: "I swear I will, Aber. There now, I have taken an oath too, and you dare not hinder me from keeping it. Will you let the boys go with me?"

"No, I won't," he shouted, his anger rising. "Not one of them shall go across that bridge." Then, as she threw a shawl over her head and started towards the door, he added in a tone of horror: "You're not going by yourself in the teeth of this storm, Mary? You will be blown off the bridge and drowned. Come back,—come back, I say."

But she was flying down the path, blow along by the wind at such a rate he knew he could not overtake her before she reached the bridge. He did not look behind him, or he would have seen the three boys slip out of the back door and go racing across the yard, headed for the bridge. He watched his wife with a gaze of fascinated horror, and saw her reach the bridge, spring upon it, and when half way across, throw up her hands, as if in a struggle to keep her footing. Another second, and wife, bridge, and all, went down into the foaming waters.

He was too far to save her, though he ran as fast as his trembling limbs would carry him, but help was near. He had been watching his wife so closely, that he had not seen George running towards her at the top of his speed; and as she sank, he sprang into the stream and tried to swim to her. It was hard work, for he was swimming in the very teeth of the gale, but as she rose to the surface, John, her eldest boy, who leaped without a moment's pause into the foaming current, caught her, and was able to hold her head above water till George reached her. It was easy for him to swim back to his own side with the wind to help, and soon all three were on the opposite bank, hurrying towards the Martins' home.

Now, in spite of his behavior, Aber Lawson was a good man, and he loved his wife and Bessie and her children. He knew there was something very serious the matter, for his wife had not given him a single backward glance, and he saw John spring on a horse and ride furiously down the road. Calling to the youngest boy to go back and take care of the little ones, he hurried with the other down the stream to where a boat was fastened, and they managed to cross over and were soon at the house of the Martins.

There was trouble indeed. One of the little girls was in strong convulsions, and his wife in her wet clothes was working hard to save her life. George was helping her, for poor Bessie was almost useless from terror, and John had gone to hurry the doctor. He was away from his home, so it was an hour before they arrived. The little girl was then sleeping quietly, and when the doctor had heard all, he said:

"It's a mercy your sister got here, Mrs. Martin. She has saved the child's life. She's the best nurse in this neighborhood by long odds, and you're mighty lucky to have her living so near you. I see the bridge between you is washed away. Well, the quicker you build a new one the better. It was a special providence it didn't get before you got over to your sisters, Mrs. Lawson."

And it was Aber who answered quickly:

"I'll build one right away, doctor, certain sure."

Then he drew George aside, and holding out his hand, said frankly: "Will you forgive me and let it be the bridge of peace, George?"

With a warm brotherly handshake, George answered: "That I will with all my heart, Brother Aber. I know now you're a Christian, for it isn't easy for you to give in. I'll try never to rile you again with my foolishness; and, please God, I'm going to be a Christian myself. I promised the Lord when I asked him to spare my poor little girl. I thought sure she was gone, Brother Aber, but the good Lord brought Sister Mary to us just in time. She almost gave her life to help us. God bless her."

Many a Mt. Sterling reader will feel grateful for this information.

When your back gives out; Becomes lame, weak or aching; When urinary troubles set in, Your kidneys are in a bad way. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you. Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. Pamela A. Fletcher, widow, of Queen Street, says: "For years I had kidney complaint, pains across the small of my back and over my kidneys dreadful aching in my back and I was sometimes so lame across my hips that I could not stop and there was difficulty with the kidney secretions. I used different medicines and prescriptions which seemed at the time to relieve me but I obtained no lasting benefit. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and a relative of mine got a box for me at F. C. Duerson's drug store. I used them as directed and they helped me in every way. My back felt very much better and stronger and the annoying and distressing kidney weakness was greatly relieved. My brother, Strother D. Carrington, of Paris, Ky., who had suffered a good many years with kidney trouble also used Doan's Kidney Pills and found the results most beneficial. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly worthy of recommendation."

Tobacco Business.

An entire revolution of the tobacco industry in the steaming districts of Kentucky and Tennessee will probably result from the action of Austin Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer of England, in refusing to withdraw the increased duty on stripped tobacco.

The new budget was issued on April 10, announcing that the duties would remain at three shillings for leaf tobacco and three shillings three pence for stripped tobacco. As nearly all of the tobacco stripped in this country is exported to England, the maintenance of the increased duty will mean that the work of stripping will be practically abandoned in America and will be taken up in England.
